

From: Zachari Duncalf <zduncalf@yahoo.com>

To: Jim <jim.goddard1@btopenworld.com>; Fbga1@aol.com; michael.shelton3@ntlworld.com

Cc: Will <wsmcmahon@yahoo.co.uk>

Subject: Re: FW: Requesting a Right of Reply on the CLA blog.

Date: Tue, Jan 26, 2010 3:46 pm

Hello David,

I decided to close discussion on the blog due to the inappropriate and unhelpful tone of the discussion. I understand that you would like your response to be placed up there, but then we would have a situation where it would be 'unfair' not to allow others to respond to your response and so on and so forth. Whilst we want to encourage open debate, we also feel a duty to make the blog a safe space where people can feel comfortable. We have never refused you access to the blog and have never edited anything you have said, but the tone of the discussion you want to continue to add to has become inappropriate. Therefore there will be no more submissions added to the blog on this issue.

We have answered all the questions you have asked us politely, quickly and in full. If you have any different questions to ask about the CLA can you contact our Chair, Will McMahon.

Best,

Zachari

From: Fbga1@aol.com [mailto:Fbga1@aol.com]
Sent: 26 January 2010 08:13
To: jim.goddard1@btopenworld.com
Cc: Zachari Duncalf; michael.shelton3@ntlworld.com
Subject: Requesting a Right of Reply on the CLA blog.

Dear Jim-Zachari,

I am requesting a full "Right of Reply" to recent comments by Executives (Jim Goddard) of the CLA on there blog concerning my personal views and position in relation to historical abuse issues. FBGA and I personally wish to ensure that the record is set straight and wholly accurate concerning these issues, FBGA and I.

I am also requesting that my last blog that I submitted on Tuesday evening 26/01/2010 be highlighted on the CLA blog for public view in the interests of balance, fairness, openness and transparency.

Yours sincerely

David Whelan